Terms

Every commission is written individually. These terms sit behind that proposal, not in front of it.

THE AGREEMENT

A commission begins when you accept a written proposal from Lohuis Signature. That proposal — vehicle, chauffeur, timings and cost — governs the work. Where it differs from these terms, the proposal prevails. These terms are sent with every proposal, as a document you can keep.

The client is whoever places the commission. These terms reach the party travelling under it and anyone authorised to act on the client's behalf.

RATES AND PAYMENT

Rates are quoted per commission and exclude VAT unless stated. Waiting beyond the allowance below, additional stops, tolls and parking are charged at cost.

A first commission is settled before the day, by card or transfer. Where we have opened an account, commissions are invoiced and payable within fourteen days; retainers are invoiced monthly in advance. Late payment carries the statutory interest and nothing beyond it.

Where fuel, duty or a third party's charges move sharply between the proposal and the day, a quoted rate may be adjusted. We will say so before the day, and you may withdraw the commission at no cost if the new figure does not suit.

CHANGES AND CANCELLATION

Timings may be moved at no cost wherever we can absorb them.

Cancellation is charged against the notice given, because what can be recovered falls away as the day approaches.

Transfers — nothing beyond forty-eight hours, half between twenty-four and forty-eight hours, in full inside twenty-four hours.

Roadshows and as-directed days — nothing beyond seventy-two hours, half between forty-eight and seventy-two hours, in full inside forty-eight hours.

Concierge arrangements — nothing beyond seven days, half between three and seven days, in full inside seventy-two hours.

Journeys — nothing beyond ninety days, half between sixty and ninety days, in full inside sixty days.

None of this is a penalty. At the notice stated the chauffeur and the vehicle are already held for you and cannot be placed elsewhere, and sums committed on your behalf are rarely recoverable.

If you are a private client and the actual loss is plainly less than the sum charged, we charge the actual loss instead. Ask, and we will show you the arithmetic.

Third-party bookings made on your behalf follow that supplier's own terms.

ARRIVAL AND WAITING

Flights are tracked. Sixty minutes of waiting are included from the moment the aircraft lands, however early or late that turns out to be.

At any other address, fifteen minutes are included. Beyond that, waiting is charged in half hours at the vehicle's hourly rate.

Where the party cannot be reached and does not travel, the commission is charged in full. Tell us you are delayed and we will wait; silence is the only thing we cannot work around.

VEHICLES AND CHAUFFEURS

We reserve the right to substitute a vehicle of equal or better standard where necessary. Chauffeurs observe traffic law, driving-hours rules and their own judgement on road and weather conditions; those judgements are final. Smoking is not permitted in our vehicles.

Damage caused by the party, inside or out, is charged at cost with fifteen per cent for arranging the repair. Cleaning beyond the ordinary is treated the same way.

A chauffeur may end a commission where behaviour puts the vehicle, the party or the chauffeur at risk. That is a safety judgement rather than a commercial one, and it is rarely needed.

YOUR OWN VEHICLE

Where we drive a car you own, it must be roadworthy, hold a valid APK, be taxed, and be insured for a driver who is not its owner. Please tell us of any condition, modification or handling matter before the day.

Your own policy answers for the driving. Damage we cause away from the wheel — a door opened into a wall, a case set down against the rear bumper — is ours to put right.

What we answer for is the conduct of the chauffeur. Mechanical failure, wear, and anything already wrong with the car when it reaches us are not ours.

CONCIERGE ARRANGEMENTS

Where we reserve accommodation, tables, tickets or access on your behalf, we act on your instruction and in your name. The contract is between you and that house, and its own terms, deposits and cancellation windows apply alongside ours.

We choose carefully and we press your case if something goes wrong. We do not underwrite the house's own performance — but nor do we hide behind it where the choice was ours and was careless.

Sums we pay out on your behalf are recharged at cost; a handling fee, where one applies, is stated in the proposal.

JOURNEYS

A journey is written for one party and priced as a whole. Routes are reconnoitred and alternatives held in reserve; we may re-cut a day for weather, closure, road conditions or safety without that being a change to the commission.

Where a journey depends on third-party suppliers, their performance is theirs — we will always press your case, but we do not underwrite it.

A journey is cancelled on the notice set out above. Houses and tables are held months ahead, and any non-refundable sum already committed on your behalf remains payable whatever the notice.

LIABILITY

We carry the insurance required for passenger transport in the Netherlands.

We are not liable for delay or loss caused by matters genuinely outside our control — traffic, weather, closures or industrial action.

Where a third party we engaged fails you, we will pursue them on your behalf. We do not underwrite their performance, but nor do we hide behind them where the choice of that party was ours and was careless.

Personal effects remain your responsibility. Anything found in a vehicle is kept safe and returned to you; carriage is at your cost.

Nothing here limits our liability for death or personal injury, or for damage caused by our own intent or conscious recklessness.

GOVERNING LAW

Dutch law applies. Should something go wrong, tell us first — most matters are settled by conversation. Put it in writing within fourteen days of the commission and you will have a considered answer within five working days.

Failing that, disputes go to the competent court in Amsterdam. If you are a private client you may instead choose the court the law would otherwise appoint: tell us within one month of our writing to you about this clause, and that is where the matter goes.

PRIVATE CLIENTS AND BUSINESSES

Several clauses above treat a private client differently from a business. A private client means a natural person acting outside their trade, business or profession. Everyone else is a business.

LANGUAGE

These terms exist in English and in Dutch and each says the same thing. If you are a business and the two ever differ, the English governs. If you are a private client, the law gives you the reading that favours you, and we will not argue with it.
